

DANIEL E. BANDMANN'S MARRIAGE

Free to Marry Mary Kelly.

SUN from Missoula said that the German actor, English tragedian, Daniel E. Handmann, had married on his ranch near that town Miss Mary E. Kelly, an actress, of San Francisco.

Miss Kelly, it was added, had been his guest on the ranch for some weeks. It was presumed that Handmann must have been free to wed for the second time, because it was well known that for many years he had lived apart from his first wife, the English actress, Milliegent Handmann-Palmer. This letter had, however, been received at the office of one of the dramatic newspapers:

Swire, England, Aug. 13, 1906.

Sir: A paragraph from your issue of the 10th inst. has reached me, stating that your husband, Daniel E. Handmann, was married on his ranch at Missoula to a woman named Mary Kelly, an actress of San Francisco.

and his children some 7000 acres. It is not known whether he is still in the proceedings for divorce against him, either in England or in Montana. Therefore, you are right in stating that Henri C. Handmann was not a married man when he came to Montana. My husband has married the woman in question, and she is now a resident of the United States.

Yours truly,
My daughter, my son, and myself,
Most respectfully you to insist this letter immediately
yours,
MILBERT RANDOLPH PALMER.

Milbert Palmer and Handmann were married in London in 1881. She was then a handsome woman in 1870. She was then a handsome actress and a strong actress in classic and modern plays. She was then a handsome actress in 1882, owing, it was then stated, to incompatibility of temperaments. She was then a handsome actress in England, where she has since remained. Handmann about 1884 started from San Francisco for Montana, where he was met by Louise Beaudet, who, he announced, was his protégée, and in whose talent he had grown confident. He was then a handsome man, and he was then a handsome man in British India, and Australia, and were about 30 years.

When the game back Handmann invested some of his earnings in the Montana cattle ranch, and he was then a handsome man in interfere when he has started. His ranch has returned to the state, and the law is now thought to be lost to the stage forever.

Mrs. Hinch life did not agree with little Miss Maudie, however. She could not abide the fascinations of the stage, and as she went back to college again. After she had been some time in the East, Bandmann and she disagreed, and she returned to her home. Her father, however, claimed an interest in the ranch, asserting that Bandmann had invested part of his money in its purchase.

SHIPPING FAILURE IN LONDON.

George Tweedy & Co. Suspend Because of the Failure of Black Sea Crops.

PHILADELPHIA, AUG. 23.—Shipping circles

News of the failure first reached here in a cablegram received by Capt. R. Milburn, commander of the British steamship Munificent, one of the chartered boats of the line, which was just starting from London with a general cargo. The cablegram was from J. Westall, a large ship owner of Sunderland, Eng., the owner of the Munificent, and Capt. Milburn was instructed to hold his cargo until a cable was received from London with instructions.

Accordingly the Captain refused to allow any of his cargo to be discharged to-day. Late in the afternoon a cable from London confirming the suspension was received.

The firm of Twynedy & Co. is one of the best known in the shipping trade, and is principally engaged in the carrying of passengers and cargo between the North Atlantic and the Indian Ocean, steamships between this port and London, Bristol, Avonmouth, Swansea, and Rotterdam.

British large steamships. They have heretofore been the only regular trade and regular line of steamships to Odessa and other Mediterranean ports. The embargement of the British flag has been a great blow to the Odessa steamship company, which has depended upon a large tonnage of British steamships for its business. It is not likely that it will in any way interfere with the business of the Black Sea.

George Tweddy was in Philadelphia about a week ago, and at that time was contemplating the building of a new branch line of this branch of his line with accommodation for the carrying of passengers. He is now under contemplation the establishment of a line to Liverpool.

Saw Her Husband Devoured by Bears.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BOYD (Tr. Idaho, Aug. 10).—William Easton Boyd, of the Idaho Cattle and Horse Co., of Cairo, Ill., was devoured by two cinnamon bears on Aug. 5. His aged wife, who is an invalid, was with him at the time.

The scene of the horrifying occurrence was Easton's ranch, eight miles west of Elk City in Idaho county. The unfortunate rancher and his wife were eating their breakfast, when they heard a great commotion in the calf pen. Picking up the sticks and broken iron, the pen men rushed to the calves of their food. They picked up an ordinary carriage whip and went forth to straighten matters out. He climbed into the pen, and seeing a black snout inserted between two red ones, he raised the whip with both hands and cracked it down with a resounding crack. A sudden snarl apprised him that he had encountered a bear instead of a hog, and he started to leave the pen to get a rifle. Before he had succeeded in getting over the fence a male bear ran around the pen and

With pain and the animal released him. He quickly as his wound and his age would permit, he crawled to the window and he tried to crawl through a window. The beast pursued him, and seizing his hip, commenced to ravously tear the flesh. Agonizing screams issued from the old man's lips. His wife, who was in the room, loved and when she saw what was taking place, she commenced to shriek. Her husband, already terribly wounded, cried out:

"Do not make a noise or you will be killed. A woman heard here will sell to the ground another brave heart and you know how much first animal in tearing at the greatest man."

"I once had an adventure in New Mexico that made a terrific draft on my nervous system."

walk from the station to the ranch of an old friend, some four miles out, and when I had covered about half the distance a gigantic black dog came bounding out of the brush, not even a pocket knife. When a few feet distant, he stopped and looked me over. I was so startled that I forgot to pick up my mind, what I was doing, or where I was for breakfast. I had heard much of the power of the human eye, and I proceeded to stare at him fixedly. This overcame him so that he sat down on his haunches and stared lazily. I continued to stare and frown and he came forward and rubbed his head against my trembling knees, and made a purring sound that resembled a purr. I was so overcome that I was not hungry. I walked slowly along in the di-continued to rub against my legs and purr. There was not a tree or house for the entire distance, and the brute stuck to me like a cocking door to a merino sheep. When I rapped at the door he sat down and made his toilet by rubbing his big paws over his face. When my friend opened the door I found that I had inadvertently dropped my voice along the road. Somewhere, I could only point to my companion, I had heard a voice like this:

"My pet," said he, "I raised him from a kitten; harmless as a dove and sociable as a grass widow."

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 22.—Some of the native cotton mills intend improving the quality of their production, notably in print cloths, to a point where foreign goods cannot hope to make effective competition. Notwithstanding the duties on paper and incidental protection afforded by exchange paper, manufacturers are said to desire more protection, and on this question some leading journals have taken strong grounds, asserting that the mills are Free traders argue that the high duties protect native mills to such a degree that foreign goods are kept out of the country, and the Government loses thereby. This is demonstrated by the loss of revenue on cotton goods, and on sugar, iron goods, &c.

country the protectionist party is showing its head, and protectionist doctrines drawn from American protectionists are freely used. The policy would damage trade with the United States undoubtedly, but this is no concern to the Mexican protectionists.

ER HUSBAND SNORED AND DREAMED

and were unable to get to sleep until nearly midnight. Then they slept soundly, and after awhile, Mr. Townsend dreamed that he had

ALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.
Beware of Imitations and ask for CARTER'S and see you get C-A-R-T-E-R'S.